The Country School Association of America (CSAA) holds their annual conference alternating in mid-west and east coast locations.

Our national organization is seeking attendees and presenters interested in sharing ideas and research in early American education, early schooling, curriculum, recreations, and preservation of historic country schools.

CSAA has been recognized as an outstanding national association with a diverse and vast membership of professors, in-service and retired teachers, scholars, historic restoration specialists, museum educators, and hundreds of schoolhouse and education enthusiasts.

The conference has a unique “all-inclusive” design with two days of concurrent sessions followed by a third day consisting of a chartered bus tour of restored schoolhouses in the area. The cost of the conference is kept very reasonable and lodging can be obtained at Skidmore College for a reduced rate in order to remain affordable to all interested attendees, students, and retirees.

More information and workshop proposal forms can be found on our website.
